Though the Sun doesn’t seem to change too much to our eyes, it is much more active than it looks.
The Sun changes on an 11 year cycle, going from quiet to active and back to quiet.
That’s why NASA launched the Solar Dynamic Observatory.
SDO has images 10 times bigger than HD TV and the unique ability to see inside the Sun.
We are now taking an unprecedented look at how the Sun affects us.